Point Line Projects is an editorial and curatorial agency specializing in architecture, art, and design.

What We Do

PLP empowers creators in art, architecture, and design to produce thoughtful work in the vanguard of creative fields. We work with a wide range of clients-from individuals, to firms, to institutions-to elevate their publication and exhibition projects with specialized skills and experience.

We approach each project holistically, considering clients' short and long-term goals, and we tailor our expertise to fit their specific ambitions, audiences, budgets, and needs. Our creative team is here to shepherd projects from concept to completion, and our ultimate goal is to foster productive conversations about architecture, art, and design across many formats and media.

Our services include:

- writing
- copy editing
- research
- book placement & packaging
- curating
- event planning
- press & PR
- marketing & communications
- website design
- image licensing
- graphic design
- fundraising & grant writing
- strategy & consulting

Books

We can transform your book into an outstanding publication with our connections and experience in art and design publishing. Whether you have a publisher or are looking for one, call us for help with image rights, writing, editing, research, fundraising, press & marketing, design, and packaging to ensure your book reaches the right readers.

Exhibitions

Let us handle all the logistics of exhibiting your work. We curate exhibitions, coordinate travel & installation, organize press & marketing campaigns, plan events, and research & license content for exhibitions of all types.

Press, Marketing & Special Projects

Whether you're an artist, writer, architecture firm, or institution, we offer writing, press & marketing support, communications strategy, and website development to support your creative practice and enhance your visibility. Seeking funds? In the last three years alone we've helped clients secure over $100,000 in project funding.
